

I am writing about the possibility of losing K-Love radio if it is replaced by an LPFM broadcaster. I listen to K-Love on 91.1 in Denver, Colorado & don't want to see them go off the air. I am a supporter by monthly payments to K-Love & feel that their contributions to myself individually & the community are irreplaceable. It serves the local community by announcing programs, etc. in the area & is available with resources to help the community. They help to raise funds for rescue missions in whatever area of the country you hear their station. They also offer encouragement in times of uncertainty & economic stress. As long as this station is funded by it's listeners, it is obvious that there is a need for this type of broadcasting. It should not be forced off the air, but be allowed to continue because if it weren't a service/benefit to the community listeners would cease funding the station out of what is many times a very small "wallet" for a lot of people. People don't waste their hard earned money on something that isn't of benefit to them personally & that also supports the community through soliciting funds for other causes in the town where the station is. Please don't make them go off the air! Thank you.
